END THE SUFFERING

There are approximately 23,000 dogs in Marshall BioResources' sheds on any given day. Marshall ships the animals they breed to research laboratories across the U.S. and around the world, including private contract companies where animals are subjected to toxicology experiments that force them to inhale or ingest chemicals like pesticides. Other animals are sent to universities and used in invasive science experiments, like severing dogs' spinal roots, cutting off their tails, and implanting electrodes on their bladders.

Your actions makes a difference. Join us from Thursday, May 8 through Saturday, May 10, 2025, 7 am EST in protest and let's free the beagles!
